Halal food certification has been criticized by anti-halal lobby groups and individuals on social media, who claim that certifying foods as halal leads to consumers subsidising a particular religious belief. Australian Federation of Islamic Councils spokesman Keysar Trad told a journalist in July 2014 that this was an attempt to exploit anti-Muslim sentiments.

Packaged Halal foods often carry a “Halal Certified” logo awarded by the Muslim council or Halal supervisory board of your country. Some foods simply have the word “Halal” printed on them; this is fine too, but be careful in considering whether you are able to trust the source. If there is no Halal symbol, look for the vegetarian sign.
